SOME OPERAS FROM OTHER COUNTRIES:

THE RISE OF NATIONAL OPERA

Thursdays, Oct. 13 - Nov. 17, 2016

1:00 pm - 3:00 pm

Opera originated in Italy at the very end of the 16th Century and quickly spread to other parts of Europe. A distinctive French form of musical theatre soon emerged, while opera in German opera didn't appear until the latter part of the 18th Century. From the 19th Century until the present day these three national forms have dominated the operatic repertory throughout much of the world.

Beginning in the mid-1800's other countries began to develop their own distinctive forms as a response to the dominance of Italian, French and German works, and some of these forms have gradually found a place on international stages. In this series we will look at a sampling of works from some of those "other" countries, many of which have made inroads into the international repertory, even in the USA. We will consider works by Tchaikovsky and Mussorgsky (Russian), Smetana, Dvorák and Janacek (Czech), Nielsen (Danish), Moniuszko (Polish), Erkel (Hungarian), and Delius (from that "land without music", England). As always, video selections from all operas will be shown.
